

Alexander Dennis Human Rights Policy

Alexander Dennis has business operations and supply chains across the globe and is aware of its responsibilities to respect and protect the rights of employees and individuals and communities affected by its activities. Alexander Dennis seeks to support, preserve and promote human rights consistent with the Universal Declaration of Human Rights wherever it does business and in a manner which is consistent with the business.

Alexander Dennis actively collaborates with employees, elected employee representatives, communities, non-governmental and other stakeholders to uphold and promote human rights.

Where human rights are under threat, Alexander Dennis is committed to upholding local laws and promoting internationally recognised standards. Across its business operations and supply chains, Alexander Dennis endeavours to have international standards upheld by the appropriate Governments, Institutions and Agencies.

Alexander Dennis works diligently in all respects to support and uphold the United Nations Guiding Principles on Business and Human Rights.

Alexander Dennis makes an annual Modern Slavery & Human Trafficking Disclosure Statement as required by law and is committed to collaborating with its stakeholders and others to eradicate modern slavery in all its forms.
